is currently in development. A portion of this is to move some of our existing data into new database tables for our new database schema. I have the existing data there in a folder on our network share. Trying to access this file from my app I use `System.IO.Path.Combine("\\MyServerName\\Scripts\\AppData\\Data\\Current")` However whenever I do so I get `"System.ArgumentOutOfRangeException: File not found:`

`\\MyServerName\\Scripts\\AppData\\Data\\Current'`. It is obvious to me that the computer name has changed to `:\MyServerName` and the path is not longer valid. Yet because I can see the file when I navigate to the network share it means to me that there is no problem with the path. As a test to see if the problem is from .NET I created a class with a simple function that runs the same code as the standard `System.IO.Path.Combine("\\MyServerName\\Scripts\\AppData\\Data\\Current")` and then returns the path. The function returns my expected full path. In addition to this I have tried loading the existing folder as a resource in the project. While doing this I also tried setting the "Copy to Output Directory" to "Copy Always" and "Copy if Newer" with no luck. Yet the path is never the same as the one that I see when I go the network share. What can I try next? Any suggestions

Q: How to configure the filename when saving all files of a Google Drive with python? I want to save all files in a folder of Google Drive, but it's always save only one file. How can i change the filename when save all the files? This is my code:

from google.cloud import drive client = drive.Client() files = client.children().list_files() for item in files: if item.kind == 'file': drive.create_file(['myfile'], item) #save_file("myfile", item.get('title'), item.get('mimeType'), "myinfo")

A: This is my code (it's a modified version of Google's python library for Drive):

from google.cloud import drive client = drive.Client() files = client.children().list_files() files.data.save('.',
